At COMO Hotels and Resorts, we are mindful of our impact on the cultures, economies and environments in each of our locations, congruent with our commitment to create memorable and sustainable travel experiences for every guest.

At COMO Parrot Cay, we are dedicated to conserving the remarkable biodiversity of the island and reducing our environmental footprint. Around 85 per cent of the island's 1,000 acres is retained as marine wetlands and mangroves, supporting a prolific range of native wildlife such as the Great Egret, Brown Pelican and Brown Anole. Our banana and coconut plantations supply our kitchens, while providing opportunities for guests to learn about the natural and cultural assets of the island. COMO Parrot Cay also invests in the community through our partnership with Raymond Gardiner High School in neighbouring North Caicos, supporting local youths with educational and occupational opportunities.
