

Fruit Bat

The Seychelles fruit bat eats fruit and nectar and helps disperse the seeds of many trees.

Takamaka

Now a protected species in the Seychelles, the takamaka tree's tough, waterproof wood was once favoured by pirates for repairing boats damaged during battles.

Frangipani

A frangipani tree marks the entrance to each villa compound, symbolising harmony and romance and filling the air with a delicate, tropical fragrance.

Hibiscus

These showy flowers grow freely throughout the Resort. We infuse them to make the vibrant hibiscus tea that is served to guests when they first arrive.

Seychelles Chameleon

A little known, endemic species that adjusts its colour to match its surroundings – can you spot one? Harmless and peaceful, it catches insects with its long, sticky tongue.

Blue Pigeon

A medium-sized bird which inhabits forested areas of the granitic Seychelles archipelago.

Breadfruit

There is an old local saying that eating breadfruit will ensure a return to the Seychelles; snack on breadfruit chips in Kannel to secure another visit to paradise!

Jungle Flavours

A rich menu of vanilla, lemongrass, chillies and cinnamon grows around the Resort, topped with a salad of papaya, guava, jackfruit, banana, passion fruit, coconut, mango and breadfruit trees.

Big Game Fishing

From marlin, yellow fin and big eye tuna to swordfish, rainbow runner and kingfish, experience the year-round thrill of landing a big prize in pristine azure waters.
